

Boffins unite for concert of delights

Medics and Scientists Music Ensemble - St Alphege Church,

THIS group hit town in a volume of sound. The newly created group was supporting the charity Sing For Your Life.

To a large audience, our local medical and scientific finest gathered their talents to put on a programme of music in support of Parkinson's UK. Welcomed by programme director Adrian Bawtree, the musical soiree was as diverse as Bach to Brubeck, Ravel to refreshment.

It included pieces for harp (Evangeline Kanagasooriam), flute (Dr Jacky Buchanan), clarinet (Sian Rees), saxophone (Tim Pickering) and piano (Jake Bhanji). This delightful concert reached its finale with excerpts from Mozart's Coronation Mass sung by the Ensemble choir, conducted by Dr Angeline Kanagasooriam, who had contributed solos (voice and piano).

Concert chairman Dr David Kanagasooriam thanked all for coming to what is hoped will be the first of many such evenings and reflected upon the old, new and retro approaches to the treatment of dementia and Parkinson's.

David Roberts

imprisoned and sentenced to He has been caught. is one of Victorian London's most immoral villains. in this unique and powerful one-man show, Fagin the Miser, played by actor and storyteller James Hyland, is one of Victorian London's most immoral villains. in this unique and powerful one-man show, Fagin the Miser, played by actor and storyteller James Hyland, is one of Victorian London's most immoral villains. in this unique and powerful one-man show, Fagin the Miser, played by actor and storyteller James Hyland, is one of Victorian London's most immoral villains.

October 18. Staged in St Mary's Hall, Canterbury on Thursday, October 18.